This webcast will provide an overview and status update of the energy programs included in ARRA focusing on the State Energy Program (SEP) and the Energy Efficiency Conservation Block grant programs.

New York is receiving approximately $152 million from the U.S. Department of Energy for these programs. Funds will be available for energy efficiency, renewable technologies, alternative-fuel vehicles, and other energy-saving strategies. Information will be provided on the eligibility requirements and application process for energy conservation studies and project implementation funds. Methods to leverage other New York programs and financing for energy projects will also be presented.

Interested parties will include: Municipal governments, public schools, public colleges and universities, hospitals, and 501 (C)(3) not-for-profits.

The session will be presented by the Governor's Office, the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) and the New York Power Authority (NYPA).
